

Blue Class

For Black History Month, we enjoyed reading this story. In the story, Rocket wanted to be the greatest astronaut, star catcher, space traveller that has ever lived!

Rocket wanted to be just like Mae Jemison, the first African-American woman in Space.

Did you know? She went into orbit around Earth in the space shuttle Endeavour, even though she was scared of heights.

Mae's story showed us that if you have a dream and you believe in yourself and work really hard then anything is possible. You can be anything in the world you want to be!

When Blue Class grow up, they want to be...

doctors, builders, crane drivers, daddies, fire fighters, dancers, astronauts, butterflies, princesses, superheroes, hairdressers, footballers...

The story inspired us to make our own constellations. Constellations are patterns of stars in the sky.

Remember to think big and aim for the stars!
