

Scarlet Class had been inspired by Manchester United football player, Marcus Rashford.

Last year, Marcus started working with a charity called FareShare, which delivered food to children who were no longer having free school meals. In total, more than £20 million was raised and over 4 million meals were provided, which is incredible.

Marcus' achievements inspired us to think about what we feel passionate about and the positive changes we want to see. We created posters encouraging different campaigns such as: protecting endangered animals, saving sea life, stopping pollution, encouraging recycling and much more.

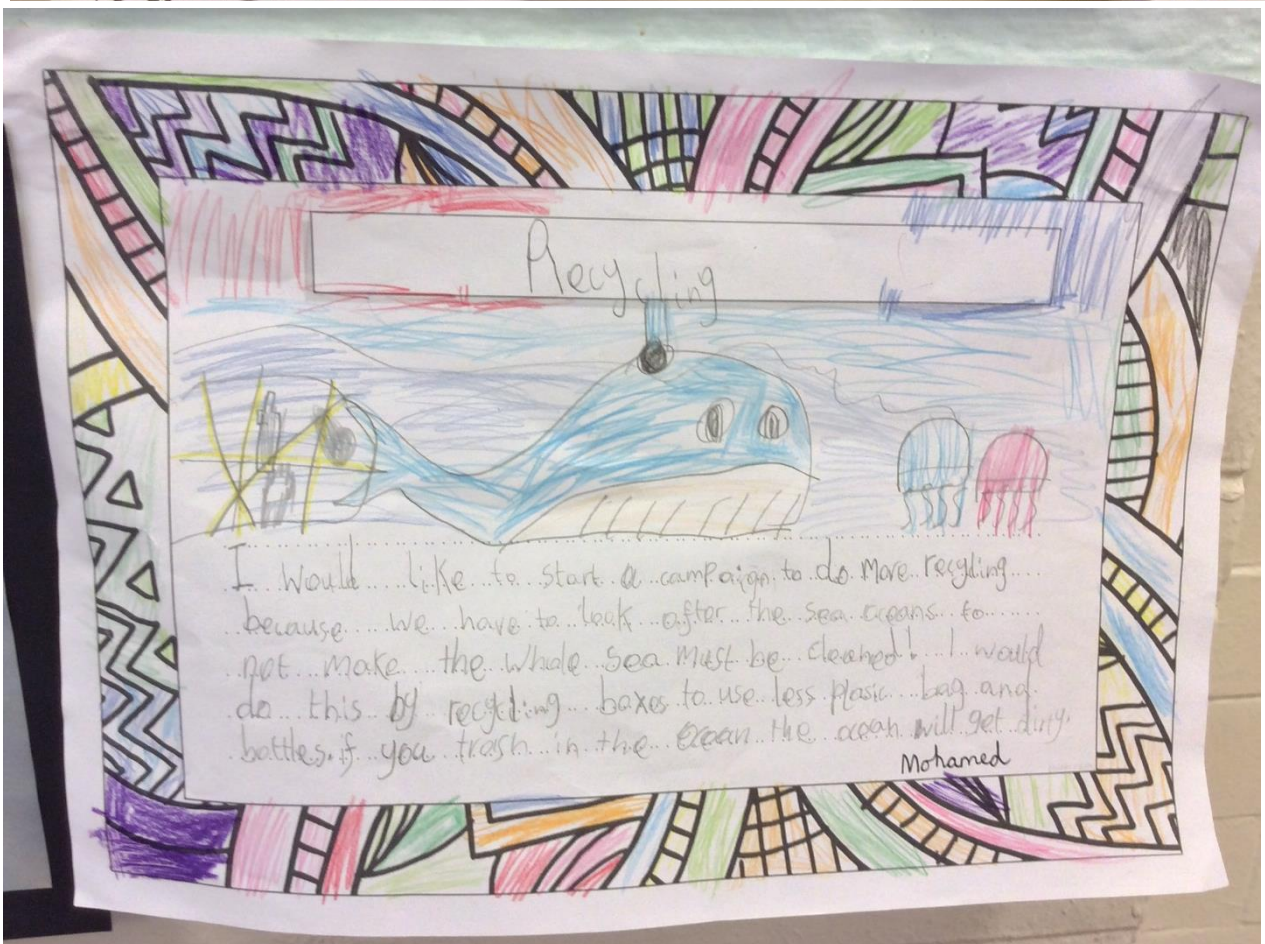

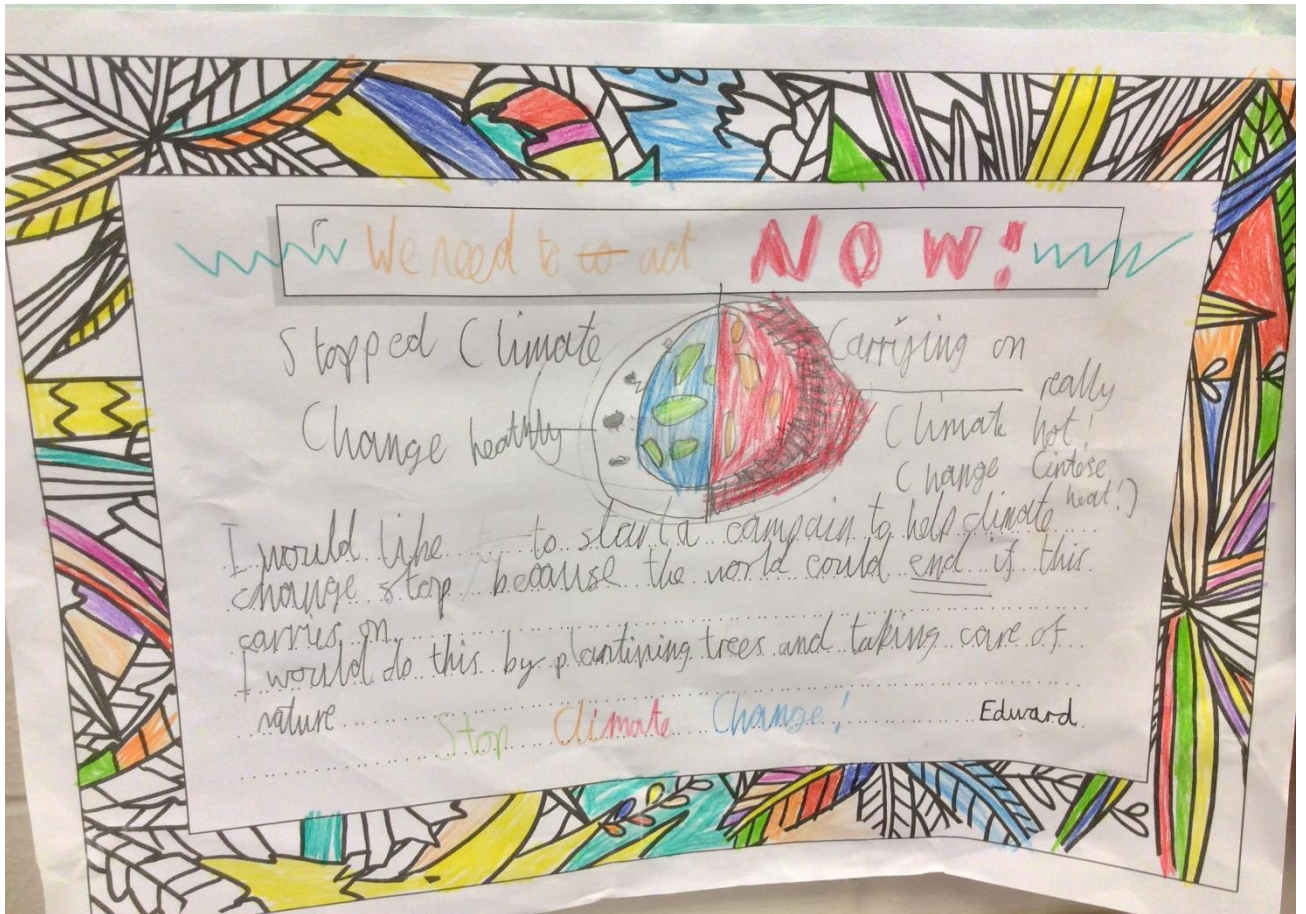

In Scarlet Class, we have been celebrating Black History Month by listening and singing to Reggae music. We have been enjoying the rhythm of the slow beats and uplifting lyrics which has kept us smiling. So, sing along to Three Little Birds with us and smile with the risin' sun!

Cute animals!

I would like to start a campaign to NOT endanger animals and help them because to HAP not take palm oil so to keep animals safe.
So that animals like orangutans never get hurt.
I would do this by together love taiba and Jean ♡♡♡
